Hey folks, editor Sean back with Josh to dive into more response on COBRA COMMANDER #1 and hopefully give you satisfying answers to your questions. We've been overwhelmed with your reactions online, and we hope you love this issue—filled with Dreadnoks and NEMESIS ENFORCER—as much as we do. Josh?

Josh here! The response to this title (and DUKE) has been awesome to see. I love this franchise, and I'm really happy with what we're doing with it. Also, how big and wild it will get. And here we are with one of more wild endings. This was planned from the start and something I was pumped to see on the page.

Hello Joshua Williamson, Andrea Milana, Robert Kirkman, and the Cobra Commander team,

I read Cobra Commander issue 1 and I loved it. I loved seeing Cobra Commander in the Old Snake outfit a nice nod to the Marvel/Sunbow cartoon from the 1980s. I also loved the inclusion of Cobra-La, it was unexpected, but awesome at the same time. Also, the Megatron reveal was wonderful, just time for Transformers #4 where we see Megatron frozen in the Arctic, now Cobra Commander has him. It's just wonderful and I'm so excited to see where this universe goes. I'm even crossing my fingers that there's a place for Rom The Space Knight & MASK. I must know if the person Cobra Commander calls "Grunt," is that Grunt as in the GI Joe Robert Graves, or just a henchman Cobra Commander refers to as Grunt, or is that a trade secret I'm not supposed to know until later?

Lowercase "grunt". Honestly, I never thought people would think that was Grunt, which inadvertently helped us disguise his true identity…

I know I've already asked about Tiger Force, Python Patrol, Steel Corps, Star Brigade, and Adventure Team and if there are plans to have Larry Hama write an Energon Universe GI Joe title or if he will only be writing ARAH for Skybound in the ARAH and Void Rivals letters columns. So I won't ask those questions. I am curious to know how soon we'll see characters like Firefly, Scrap-Iron, Storm Shadow, Copperhead, Dr. Mindbender, and Serpentor appear in the Energon Universe.

All I can say is, one of those really soon, and another, soon than later.

I'd like to get to all of it? But we're trying to be patient and introduce them when it makes the most sense. And when it you least expect it.

I'm also curious about something from a business angle I know that it's been previously stated that Skybound will republish Marvel & IDW Transformers & GI Joe comics, I'm just making sure those will come in the form of trade paperbacks, hardcovers, compendium, and omnibuses? I know it's probably a silly question, but I just wanted to double-check and/or triple check that's what was meant by that. I'm curious will these reprints include the Devil's Due and Dreamwave era of Transformers & GI Joe comics in addition to Marvel & IDW? Will these include everything those publishers published? I know when IDW published their Disavowed TPBs for the DDP GI Joe comics the Special Missions, Frontlines, Declassified, and Reloaded comics were never collected in the Disavowed TPBs, so I'm curious to know if Skybound plans to correct that mistake when it's time to publish those trades.

Sincerely,
Scotty

We've recently announced that our reprint program will start with the Marvel runs of G.I. JOE: ARAH and TRANSFORMERS in Fall 2024. They will be collected in hefty compendiums with all-new cover art. We're aiming to make our reprint program as complete as possible, and we'll share updates when we're able.

For more Megatron, be sure to check out ENERGON UNIVERSE SPECIAL 2024 on Free Comic Book Day. There are a TON of surprises waiting in that issue, consisting of new TRANSFORMERS, VOID RIVALS, and G.I. JOE stories.

That is what I love to hear. So glad you're with us on this journey!

This first issue was absolutely amazing. I have always adored Cobra Commander, ever since I got into G.I. Joe when I was younger, and I was ecstatic when I found the release date for a Cobra Commander comic in the back of my issue of Transformers.

I love me some Cobra Commander, too!

I was amazed with the flashbacks, (Cobra-La!!) and I really like how Josh is incorporating different versions of his origin into the story, I think it gives the story a great sense of originality, I can't wait to see where it goes. I love Cobra Commander's personality as well, it's a bit different than what I am accustomed to but I can still hear his voice perfectly in the dialogue and I think that's great.

Thank you! I know we're mixing his origin up a bit, but his voice was the thing I wanted to nail. Just tweaked it a bit to reflect the new world that we're building.

I haven't been too much of an avid comic reader until lately but let me tell you I GASPED when I turned the page to see Megatron in the hands of Cobra Commander. I thought the Energon Universe was pretty beat before but this issue has hooked me in forever. You can count on me never missing an issue from here on out! Keep up the outstanding work and I can't wait to keep reading COBRA COMMANDER and DUKE!

Cruz from Phoenix

Dear Joe team

Wow! That page turn in Cobra Commander was quite the surprise! The biggest GI Joe comics shock since Cobra Commander was shot? (Pick your favourite time).

When we were first introduced to Cobra La in GI Joe The Movie, the retcon nature was jarring - "everything you thought you knew about Cobra was wrong!"

Here, Cobra La is introduced at the outset of the Cobra story - an integral foundation to build on and give a new and unexpected dynamic to this universe. The use of Cobra La is also a clever difference between the Energon Universe and Hama's ARAH - with Hama never including Cobra La in that title.

That was a note early on. That if we're going to do it, we do it from the start. Try to have a plan for all these big pieces, so we can do unexpected things with them.

And as for Cobra Commander's origins -- you have your cake and eat it- as well as a disgraced scientist he is also a human taken in from the outside world. A failed car dealer perhaps?
Building a shared universe (Cobra La and Transformers) slowly from ground up & cross pollinating (maybe I'm thinking of spores) is giving us a more organic rich and expanding universe. Not just separate stories that are smashed together for a one off crossover.

Looking forward to the next twist you give us!

Mark "Talking Joe" Seddon
Talking Joe Podcast

We understand that not everyone loves Cobra-La… but Josh and I are unabashed Cobra-La fans. Robert, too. It was always where Cobra Commander's story started in our minds, but you can expect a few wrinkles to Cobra Commander's origin. Cobra-La definitely fits into the world we're building within the Energon Universe… and even I'm surprised at the direction it's taking us.

Yeah, I love that movie, and it's been a blast finding a way to tie together the different origins for the awesome Cobra Commander.

Can I start by just saying woah? My expectations were pretty high, but this managed to surpass all of them. It's a really solid start to what I fully expect to be one of the best GI Joe books ever written. Also as somebody who's only ever read the comics and never touched the Sunbow cartoon outside of memes, I think I understand how people who never watched Transformers season 3 felt when reading Void Rivals lmfao. Any episode suggestions to better understand what you guys are pulling from? Also will the inspiration be primarily cartoon based or is there a chance of us maybe getting comic characters sometime down the line? cough Billy cough

We're not adapting any episodes one-to-one, but the five part "Five Faces of Darkness" definitely features a number of characters that have either appeared (Skuxxoid), will be appearing soon (Springer), and some that are better left as surprises.

We'll be introducing characters from different animated series and comics, eventually. There are a TON of quality characters to introduce, and as Josh and I know, being patient is the hardest part of creating this universe.

Finally, as someone who grew up with Transformers Animated (if you wanna feel old, know that I turned 21 this year), I really dig the callback with the whole Megatron experiment thing (and his messed up face). Is this where the Isaac Sumdac parallels end or are we going somewhere with this alongside the big revelation in Duke #1? Anyway, thank you guys for all the hard work that goes into these books, the Energon Universe is already the best thing I'm reading rn

Mick

I don't feel old, Mick! I think it's cool that TF and Joe have connected with so many generations. Transformers Animated is a blind spot for me, but I've repeatedly been told to watch.

I only watched a little bit of Transformers Animated when it first started. When we started to work on the book, someone very familiar with that cartoon (and all of TF) pointed it out to us, and instead of going in a different direction, I thought, let's just lean into that and have fun with it. But then we take things in very different directions. As we keep saying…expect the unexpected.

Dear Skybound,

COBRA COMMANDER #1 is a surprise-filled story with stunning art.

The spread on pages 6 and 7 put me in a state of shock. I stared for a minute or two. Beautiful art. And very surprising.

Turned the page and my heart sank when I saw the "Cobra-la-la-la-la-la!" (As a kid in '87, even being a massive Joe fan, I thought the Cobra-La figures were dumb, and was bored watching G.I. JOE: THE MOVIE when it first aired.)

A few panels later, we get that guy yelling "Retreat! Retreat!" Figuring he was Cobra Commander, my enthusiasm was further dampened.

The next page put a smile on my face. I have a soft spot for that '91 CoCo outfit thanks to Larry's #116-118, so that was a fun surprise. Not to mention, I was relieved that "Retreat-Guy" wasn't the head snake after all.

Glad that worked for you. We planned that as a misdirect that our Cobra Commander was going to be different from the first time you see him.

"These intruders may not see us as threats because we are scientists…" So, CoCo is a scientist in this universe - I like it! I felt pulled back into the story at this point.

The riot, explosion, a bizarre surgery - all great stuff, and is that a snake eye implanted on his forehead? Pretty crazy and visually cool.

Despite my general dislike of Cobra-La, by the time we get to Pythona and Golobulus, I'd decided to accept it. The story is intriguing, the art is gorgeous, and we're in a series that's shared with Transformers and Void Rivals, so a concept like Cobra-La fits with the tone of this universe, I suppose.

About screamed when I turned the page and saw Megatron!

"Cobra-La is advanced for a civilization on Earth…" THIS IS EARTH?! A secret underground land and not a different planet as I had been thinking. Great twist!

Hmm. Is this Grunt as in Robert W. Graves? Not crazy about Grunt being a villain. Not cool.

Hopefully, you enjoyed the Nemesis Enforcer reveal, if only to avoid Grunt being a villain. We promise you, when Grunt appears, he won't be a villain.

Happy to see we have Dreadnoks coming up!

A fun, surprise-filled read, and most shocking of all: there's now a story in existence that features Cobra-La that I actually like.

Thanks for the delicious cup of CoCo. Next, I'll read #303 for my cup of Joe.

Ernest Robertson

Glad you're digging ARAH!

Thank you for your honesty and for sticking with it. It's going to fun, I promise you.

That's it for this month. We'll see you next issue for Nemesis Enforcer unleashed.

-Sean

Yeah, next month's issue things get bonkers. It was fun to write Nemesis Enforcer getting bloody!

-Josh
